TREEFORT MUSIC FEST POSTPONED, NEW DATES ANNOUNCED

The ninth annual Treefort Music Fest will now take place on September 23-27, 2020

BOISE, IDAHO – March 11, 2020 — Treefort Music Fest has announced the upcoming festival, set to take place March 25-29, will be postponed due to COVID-19 concerns. The ninth annual Treefort Music Fest will now take place September 23-27, 2020 in downtown Boise, Idaho.

As previously reported, Treefort has been monitoring Coronavirus (COVID-19) and has been in constant contact with The City of Boise and Central District Health in this rapidly changing environment. With support from The City of Boise and Central District Health, postponing the festival is the best option for the Treasure Valley, the far-reaching Treefort community and the individuals and organizations that support Treefort Music Fest.

“In light of event cancellations around the globe and uncertainty about how this outbreak will impact Idaho, it was decided that postponing our festival is the best way to reduce unknown risk for our community,” said Lori Shandro, festival producer and co-founder. “It was by no means an easy decision, but we recognize the far-reaching impact of our festival and our top priority is and always will be community.”

Treefort is a people-powered festival. We know that this time is incredibly difficult and uncertain for so many, and we share those feelings.

“We appreciate the due diligence taken by Treefort Music Fest in considering the health of residents in our community, and support the decision to postpone the festival,” said Mayor McLean. “I look forward to celebrating our community and the artists at Treefort in September.”

“Central District Health supports the proactive decision of Treefort organizers to postpone this impactful community event and applauds their attention to and concern for our community’s health and wellbeing. Though Idaho currently remains at zero confirmed cases of COVID-19, we all play a part in protecting our community amidst this new virus – and we recognize it can mean making very challenging decisions,” said Central District Health representatives. Central District Health is the local health district serving Ada, Boise, Elmore and Valley counties in Idaho.

Treefort Music Fest
